Occupational Injuries and Illnesses in 2020

2020 Occupational Injuries—U.S.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, ten occupations accounted for 38.3 percent of all private industry cases involving days away from work (DAFW) in 2020. Of these, nursing assistants had the highest number of days away from work cases with 96,480, an increase of 68,890 cases (249.7 percent) from 2019. In 2020, DAFW cases for registered nurses increased by 58,590 cases (290.8 percent) to 78,740 cases. Heavy and tractor-trailer truck drivers had 43,500 DAFW cases in 2020, a decrease of 4,490 cases (9.4 percent). DAFW cases for laborers and freight, stock, and material movers, hand were essentially unchanged in 2020. Included in the ten occupations mentioned above, nursing assistants, registered nurses, and licensed practical and licensed vocational nurses had notable increases in their DAFW incidence rates in 2020. Nursing assistants, specifically, had a DAFW incidence rate of 1,023.8 per 10,000 FTE workers in 2020, an increase from 283.5 in 2019. The private industry rate for heavy and tractor-trailer truck drivers decreased from 280.0 per 10,000 FTE workers in 2019 to 259.7 in 2020.

In 2020, the median number of days away from work in all private industry occupations was 12 days, an increase from 8 days in 2019. Nursing assistants also had a median number of 12 days, doubled from 6 days in 2019. Days away from work for registered nurses and licensed practical and licensed vocational nurses increased in 2020 to 13 days and 12 days, respectively. The median days for heavy and tractor-trailer truck drivers increased to 23 days in 2020 from 19 days in 2019.

Demographics

DAFW cases for women in private industry increased 68.0 percent to 585,540 in 2020, from 348,600 in 2019. DAFW cases for men in private industry increased 7.8 percent to 577,990 in 2020, from 535,980 in 2019. Private industry workers age 65 years or over had a median of 14 days away from work due to injuries and illnesses in 2020, compared to 16 days for this same group of workers in 2019.

2020 Occupational Injuries—TN

Private industry employers reported 57,500 nonfatal workplace injuries and illnesses in Tennessee in 2020, resulting in an incidence rate of 2.7 cases per 100 full-time equivalent workers, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. In 2019, recordable illnesses made up 4.8 percent of all private sector recordable injuries and illness cases in Tennessee. In 2020, recordable illnesses made up 19 percent of all recordable cases. This was mainly due to an increase in the number of respiratory illnesses which increased from an estimated 400 in 2019 to 9000 in 2020. Two sectors, with 42 percent of private industry employment, accounted for 55 percent of the occupational injuries and illnesses: education and health services and trade, transportation and utilities.

Occupational Illnesses and COVID-19

Occupational injuries and illnesses collected in the 2020 Survey of Occupational Injuries and Illnesses (SOII) include cases of COVID-19 when a worker was infected as a result of performing their work-related duties and met other recordkeeping criteria. COVID-19 is considered a respiratory illness under criteria established by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA). The SOII collects detailed case information, including nature, for incidences requiring at least one day away from work and codes these cases using the Occupational Injury and Illness Classification System (OIICS).

Nonfarm Employment & Labor Workforce Narrative

Total nonfarm employment increased by 90,400 jobs from November 2020 to November 2021. There were increases in leisure & hospitality (up 27,700 jobs), which includes increases of 13,600 jobs in food services & drinking places; professional & business services (up 20,500 jobs), which includes increases of 12,500 jobs in professional/scientific/technical services; trade/transportation/utilities (up 19,000 jobs); durable goods manufacturing (up 9,900 jobs); other services up (6,900); and financial activities (up 5,200 jobs).

These increases were partially offset by decreases in health care and social assistance (down 7,600 jobs); local government excluding educational services (down 1,800 jobs); and construction of buildings (down 1,300 jobs).

During the past month, nonfarm employment increased 22,500 jobs. There were increases in trade/transportation/utilities (14,300 jobs), which includes an increase of 8,300 jobs in retail trade; durable goods manufacturing (up 2,700 jobs); and professional/scientific/technical services (up 2,500 jobs).

These increases were partially offset by decreases in health care and social assistance (down 1,000 jobs); state government (down 800 jobs), and administrative/support/waste management services (down 700 jobs).

Tennessee's seasonally adjusted estimated unemployment rate for November 2021 was 4.0 percent, down from the revised October 2021 rate of 4.2 percent. The United States unemployment rate for November 2021 was 4.2 percent, down from the revised October 2021 rate of 4.6 percent. In November 2020, the U.S. seasonally adjusted rate was 6.7 percent while the state rate was 5.6 percent.

The not seasonally adjusted unemployment rate decreased in 85 counties and increased in 5 counties. Williamson County had the lowest rate at 2.2 percent, down from the revised September rate of 2.1 percent. The highest rate was Perry County at 5.1 percent, down from the revised unemployment rate of 5.3 percent in October.

The data from all the nonfarm employment estimates tables include all full- and part-time nonfarm wage and salary employees who worked during or received pay for any part of the pay period that includes the 12th of the month. This is a count of jobs by place of work. Agricultural workers, proprietors, self-employed persons, workers in private households, and unpaid family workers are excluded. These numbers may not add due to rounding. Data are based on the 2020 benchmark.
